HUA-HONKA.

A LEGEND OF THE "ALUM BANKS."

BY HERMAN ROW.

One of the greatest natural curiosities in Western Pennsylvania is the "Alum Banks" on the Conemaugh River. They are situated upon the eastern bend of the stream, about half a mile above the town of Blairsville, and consist of a perpendicular ledge of rocks some two hundred and fifty feet in height, and at least one hundred feet in extent along the margin of the river. The summit is level, and, until a few years ago, was covered by timber and undergrowth of the same character as was that of the adjacent territory. These rocks are strongly impregnated with alum, as the name by which they are familiarly known would seem to indicate.

Just about two hundred years ago a tribe of Indians—or rather, the remnant of a tribe—migrated westward from the valley of the Susquehanna and located in this vicinity. Their councils were held upon the "Alum Banks;" and the unfortunate victims who fell into their hands, and were condemned to suffer death, were also executed at that place. And here upon the summit of these rocks was enacted a scene which, for thrilling interest, is perhaps not excelled by anything in the annals of the red men.

The chief of the tribe, who had just entered upon old age, was notorious for a cruel, morose, and extremely stubborn disposition. Once having passed his word, like the laws of the Medes and Persians, he changed not; and these characteristics he carried out to such an extent as to prefer the sacrifice of his own offspring, as the narrative following fully exemplifies.

An only daughter, over whose head not more than eighteen summers had passed, was all that was left to him of a once large family. She was the only tie that bound him to life, and he lavished upon her all the paternal love of which his nature was capable. Besides being intelligent beyond the ordinary standard of her sex and people, she was endowed with unusual physical beauty. Her form was erect and symmetrical, and her features were regularly and delicately fashioned, and devoid of those distinguishing marks which render the Indian face disagreeable and repulsive. Her hair, which fell in rich profusion around her neck and shoulders, was fine in quality and of a light golden color; and to this "crowning glory of woman" we are indebted for the name of Hua-Honka or the "Fair-Haired."

A young Seneca brave, who was upon a visit to the tribe, became warmly attached to the maiden, and finally succeeded in winning her love. His suit—contrary to all expectation—met with the approbation of the old chief; and he was entertained in a courteous and friendly manner, until, in the course of events, a serious difficulty arose between his own people and the tribe which he was visiting, when the old chief required his immediate departure, and, at the same time, forbade his daughter, upon pain of death, never to speak to or hold any intercourse whatever with him.

The young brave immediately complied with the demands of the old chief, and returned to his tribe. However, upon some pretext, he repeated his visit, and the maiden sought an occasion to communicate to him the restrictions laid upon her by her father, and also warned him of the danger by which he was threatened by thus returning unbidden.

They finally separated, as they supposed, unseen or unheard by any one. But such was not the case. A spy, appointed by the old chief to watch their movements, succeeded in hearing all that passed between them; and being moreover a rejected lover of the maiden, through motives of revenge, exaggerated his report of the interview to such an extent that the old man was almost frantic with rage and indignation.

The young brave on parting with the maiden made good his escape and hastened to his own tribe, for what purpose was not then known; but Hua-Honka was arrested and arraigned before the council, and summarily condemned as a criminal. Her father, with inhuman sternness and cruelty, sentenced her to suffer death on a certain day then not far distant.

In the meantime, every precaution was taken to prevent her escape; and, inasmuch as the young brave had gone home to his people, and was in all probability ignorant of her situation, Hua-Honka did not anticipate the possibility of rescue. After several ineffectual attempts to elude the vigilance of her guards, she resolved to meet her fate with such fortitude as became the daughter of a great if not less cruel and inhuman chief.

The place selected for her execution, as upon all other occasions, was within a few yards of the brink of the precipice which is formed by the "Alum Banks." Hua-Honka—much exhausted by the close confinement and the anxiety which she had experienced since her arrest—with her hands pinioned behind her back, was brought to the spot closely guarded by two warriors With no small degree of rudeness she was bound and fastened to the trunk of a tree in such a manner as to deprive her of all motion, the cords with which she was secured being so tightly drawn as almost to lacerate the flesh.

A glance at the situation, and the number of warriors assembled, revealed the impossibility to escape, even if the faint hope of rescue had been entertained by her; and the dark eyes of her father, inflamed by a passion truly demoniacal, told her plainer than words could have expressed that neither pity nor mercy was to be obtained at his hands. However, she gave no manifestation of emotion; but with characteristic Indian stoicism, calmly surveyed the scene around. But as the decisive moment drew close to hand that was to usher her spirit from time into eternity, and her inevitable doom became more fully impressed upon her mind, a feeling of overwhelming fear crept into her heart. She cast one eager, longing look at the familiar faces and objects with which she was surrounded, and then, turning her eyes to the deep blue vault of heaven, silently but earnestly committed herself into the hands of the Great Spirit, who, she doubted not, would soon welcome her to the spirit hunting grounds of her people.

The preliminary arrangements were speedily completed. The warriors, fully armed, were drawn up in a semi-circular line around her, the empty space in their ranks being protected by the precipice, thus closing up every avenue of escape even had she remained unbound. Five young warriors, with arrows adjusted to their bows, stood in readiness to execute the sentence of death; and in the midst of a profound silence, when every eye was intently bent upon the fair and helpless victim, the inhuman old chief advanced to give the signal for the murder of his own child.

But just as the word was forming on his lips, a wild yell of rage reverberated through the forest and prevented its utterance; and immediately after, the young brave and a band of his warriors, with distorted features and uplifted tomahawks, rushed into the circle.

For a moment the assailed party were seized with consternation, and stood still as if rooted to the ground; but the voice of their chief soon recalled them to their perilous situation and their duty, and a fierce and bloody contest, hand to hand, ensued.

Although inferior in numbers the advantages gained in the onset remained with the assailants, who were driving the enemy before them; and the young brave, with some three or four of his warriors, was rapidly forcing his way to the spot where Hua-Honka was bound to the tree, an unwilling and a terrible spectator of the combat, confident in achieving her release and subsequent safety.

But the wary old chief no sooner observed the movement and conjectured its object than every other consideration was forgotten in a savage resolution to destroy his child, which he feared would be carried off by one whom he now considered his deadly foe, if she were not disposed of in a summary way. Raising a yell of rage and defiance, he rushed forward with the fiendish determination of taking her life with his own hand, or of perishing in the attempt.

The apparent intention of the old man drew an exclamation of horror from the lips of the young brave; and furious at the thought of losing his bride when just within his reach, with an effort almost superhuman, he thrust aside every obstacle that presented itself and seized the uplifted arm of the old chief, who was just in the act of plunging his knife into the breast of his helpless child.

A fearful struggle, hand to hand, immediately took place, in which the old man fought with a desperation that counterbalanced the greater activity of the young brave, and proved himself no mean or unworthy antagonist.

The warriors, alarmed at the perilous position of their respective chiefs, made every exertion to reach the spot and terminate the single combat that was raging with such dreadful fury.

The young Seneca took in the situation at a glance—the decisive blow had to be dealt—not a moment was to be lost, or certain defeat, and, in all probability, extermination would result to his brave band of followers. Rendered desperate by this fact and the additional thought as to the fate of Hua-Honka, in case he should fail, he seized the old chief with a grasp of iron, and—with a power that astonished himself—raised him from the ground, and, putting his whole soul into the effort, threw him many feet beyond the brink of the precipice. In a moment more the form of the savage old chief fell upon the rocks below, a mangled and a disgusting mass.

Surprise and horror checked the further advance of his followers, who quickly sought safety in flight; but, being eagerly pursued by the victorious warriors, few succeeded in making good their escape. Among the dead were the five young men, struck down at the time of the assault, who had so readily consented to become the executioners of a helpless female but a few hours before; and, when night closed in upon the scene of the numerous tribes who had that day assembled upon the "Alum Banks," to witness the execution of the fairest and best of their number, less than half a score remained alive to tell the tale.

The young brave lost no time in severing the bands which bound his bride to the tree, and she soon recovered from the effects of the terrible ordeal through which she had passed. Without regret she bade farewell to scenes where she had passed many happy days, but no longer to be recalled but with feelings of horror, and was carried by the young brave to his tribe on Lake Seneca, where they and their descendants engaged in agricultural pursuits. They lived happily together to a green old age; not many years since when the young brave died, there were many among his acquaintances who mourned the death of "Cornplanter," the celebrated old Seneca Chief.

Mr. Cooley's Hat.

When Mr. Cooley came into church last Sunday, he placed his high hat just outside the pew in the aisle. Presently Mrs. Pitman entered, and as she proceeded up the aisle, her abounding skirts scooped Cooley's hat and rolled it up nearly to the pulpit. Cooley pursued the hat with feelings of indignation, and when Mrs. Pitman took her seat, he walked back brushing the hat with his sleeve. A few moments later, Mrs. Hopkins came into church, and as Cooley had again placed his hat in the aisle, Mrs. Hopkins' skirts struck it and swept it along about twenty feet, and left it lying on the carpet in a demoralized condition. Cooley was singing a hymn at the time, and he didn't miss it. But a moment later, when he looked over the end of the pew to see if it was safe, he was furious to perceive that it was gone. He skirmished up the aisle after it again, red in the face, and uttering sentences which were horribly out of place in the sanctuary. However, he put the hat down again and determined to keep his eye on it, but just as he turned his head away for a moment, Mrs. Smiley came in, and Cooley looked around only in time to watch the hat being gathered in under Mrs. Smiley's skirts and carried away by them. He started in pursuit and just as he did so the hat must have rolled against Mrs. Smiley's ankles, for she gave a jump and screamed right out in church. When her husband asked her what was the matter, she said there must be a dog under her dress, and she gave her skirts a twist. Out rolled Cooley's hat, and Mr. Smiley, being very near-sighted, thought it was a dog, and immediately kicked it so savagely that it flew up into the gallery and lodged upon the top of the organ. Cooley, perfectly frantic with rage, forgot where he was, and, holding his clinched fist under Smiley's nose, he shrieked: "I've half a mind to bust you over the snoot!" Then he flung down his hymn-book and rushed from the church. He went home bareheaded, and the sexton brought his humiliating hat around after dinner. After this, Cooley intends to go to Quaker meeting, where he can say his prayers with his hat on his head.—Max Adler.

Old Men in New York—Brief Sketches of Some of Them—Business.

NEW YORK, June 3, 1874.

OLD MEN.

New York has fewer old men in proportion to its population than any city in the civilized world. The poor die early, of course, for the poor in this city have not the comforts necessary to the prolongation of life; and the rich, or those aspiring to be rich, by which I mean the business men, live altogether too rapid a life to last long. The man who commences at twenty-three with ten thousand dollars or its equivalent in cheek, and on that capital does a business of half a million per annum, is not going to live to see fifty, unless, indeed, he has extraordinary luck or an extraordinary constitution. His life is one of the hardest kind of work, and of a most consuming excitement. Plethoric to-day—on the verge of bankruptcy to-morrow; with nothing in the morning with which to pay a hundred thousand dollars in the afternoon. It is a life that wears faster than any other labor in the world. It is one everlasting, never ending strain, from morning till night, and if the cares of the day enable him to sleep at night, he is lucky.

But, nevertheless, there are a few old men in New York, who have survived the strain and wear or tear of business.

MAYOR HAVEMEYER.

is over seventy, and bids fair to live twenty years yet. He is of German descent, and though he has lived through all the exciting periods of New York history, has persistently refused to get at all excited. He has had a steady, standard business—sugar refining—and has followed it with all the steadiness of the German. He has taken active part in politics—he was Mayor thirty years ago—has been and is a bank President; but in all he lives quietly and modestly, goes to bed regularly at night, uses stimulants with great moderation, and always sails on an even keel.—If his house should get on fire, Mayor Havemeyer would walk out of it deliberately; and if his refineries should burn, the loss wouldn't bother him a particle.—He would go to work, rebuild, and go on. He will refine sugar till he dies, and then his sons will do it after him—not that they have any need to do business, but because they have a habit in that way.—Sugar is their mission.

PETER COOPER,

known the world over for his benevolence—and his glue, is another seventy-five year older. A man of little more than medium height, with gray hair and spare face, there is nothing in his appearance that betokens the powers he really possesses. He is one of the strongest business men in the city, and at the same time one of the most progressive and liberal of the citizens benevolently-inclined. Having made an immense fortune out of glue, he determined that the public should have its full share of his money. So he built an "Institute" in which instruction in the practical arts and sciences should be free to all, and gave it to the city. The property is worth over a million, but it has done millions upon millions of good. Girls here learn telegraphing, wood-engraving, and a number of other professions that fit them to go out into the world armed for a strife. Young men are instructed in metallurgy, engineering, etc., and all the expense is paid by the property. Peter Cooper is not exactly a great man, but he is an exceedingly good man. Everybody loves him, as everybody ought. He looks and acts as though he was good for twenty-five more years. May he live to enjoy them.

DANIEL DREW

has passed his seventieth year, and is so tough and wiry in his texture, that he bids fair to live many years longer; though possibly could a vote be taken among his associates, his decease would not be long deferred. Daniel began life as a showman, was promoted to be a tavern-keeper, and, following his instincts, drifted into Wall street, where he has been, for many years, the most feared operator of the street. He is extremely religious—is a devoted member of the Methodist Church, and has built a Seminary; but his professions or his givings have never yet prevented him from shaving his associates most unmercifully whenever he had them in a tight place.—Nothing so delights the old man as to get his rivals in a position where he can squeeze them. He shows them no mercy—he destroys them utterly. It is related of "Uncle Dan'l" that once on a time he advised the pastor of an M. E. Church in New Jersey to invest in a certain stock.

"But suppose I should lose?" queried the preacher.

"I'm so certain that you will make money," was the reply of the good Daniel, "that if you do lose I will make it good to you."

Thus fortified the preacher did buy a trifle of the stock. And having so good a thing the good pastor confidentially told thirty or forty of his flock, all of whom made haste to invest in a stock which the saintly Daniel had as good as guaranteed to go up.

But contrary to expectation the stock went down, down, down. The preacher rushed to Uncle Daniel to redeem his promise, which the old man did by giving him a cheque for the amount of his loss.

"The thing didn't work, did it," said Daniel.

"Indeed it did not."

"Well, you havn't lost anything."

"But, my dear sir, I am distressed notwithstanding. Being certain of what you said to me I confided this good thing to my parishoners, and they—"

"Hev lost, hev they. Well people should never tetch stock onless they know the market, or hev some friend like me to make 'em good ef they lose."

The joke of the thing lay in the fact that Daniel finding himself loaded with a stock that was sure to go down took this way to unload. He told the preacher, knowing that the preacher would tell his parishoners. It was he who sold them all the stock they bought. He could well afford to make good the preacher's loss, if thereby he could unload the remainder upon the preacher's friends. Daniel was handled roughly by Jay Gould and Jim Fisk, and he was hurt severely last fall, but despite all this he is a rich man and is a power in the street. But his riches can never make him friends, for he is too selfish.

is another lively old fellow. He has reached seventy-five, but is as active as a man of thirty. He is the best preserved man of his age in New York. Every day finds him at his business, which goes on, enormous as it is, with the regularity and precision of clock-work. He employs in his business $20,000,000, and has real estate to probably three times that amount. He looks like a man of careful thought, and might pass for a physician or a clergyman. His hair is auburn, and approaches red, and retains its original color. His countenance is of light complexion, and is so smooth and firm that he might pass for fifty. His dress is plain and neat, all display being studiously avoided. He stands five feet six. Forty years ago he commenced trade in this city in a very small way; but such men could no more be confined to a small business than Napoleon could be kept on Elba. He has thousands of employees, uses millions of dollars, and deals in an enormous variety of goods; but so perfect is his system, so complete his method, that I doubt if he ever loses a dollar. Each clerk has his special duties, and those duties are so interwoven with others that the slightest sin of omission or commission must eventually be discovered. He lives plainly, though well, and has, doubtless, many long years before him. Where his money will go to, no one can form an opinion. He has no relatives on this side of the water; and with those on the other side he had no connection for years. He is building an enormous institution up-town, which, it is supposed, he intends to use for a "Girls' Lodging-House," but this is not certain. The probability is that he will keep on, intending to do some great and good thing, but die suddenly before his plans are completed, and that his enormous fortune will enrich his Irish relatives. Our only comfort will be that the estate will have to go through the courts in New York, which will keep the most of it in this country.

VANDERBILT

is another man who has seen eighty, but who enjoys vigorous health. Old as he is, it was only a few years ago that he married a young wife, and notwithstanding he attends to the details of his enormous railroad business, and plays whist as regularly and methodically as ever. He controls more miles of railway than any other man on the continent, and his lines are all important. He is an iron-gray old fellow, who worked up to his present position from nothing, and who bids fair to double his already colossal fortune before he passes out. But I have gossipped long enough about the old men. It will be noticed that every one of the rich men in the city commenced very poor.

BUSINESS

Is horribly and fearfully dull, so dull indeed as to be no business at all. The merchant looks wistfully out into the street.—The salesman wears a pained look, for his occupation is gone, and the book-keeper balances himself and reads the newspapers. The West is not here, and the South stays away, and the North refuses to invest.—The theatres are losing money, the hotels are well nigh empty, and the bar-keepers mourn as those without hope. Let us hope for a revival. PIETRO.

Confidence Men.

All the teachings of experience and all the daily clamor of the press seem to be unavailing to convince a certain class of visitors from the interior, that if they make sudden friendships in the city they will regret it. There is hardly a day in which the police are not made the recipients of a tale of woe founded upon spontaneous intimacy and misplaced confidence. Sometimes a gentle stranger accosts the rural visitor as Mr. Huggins of Utica. He replies, "You are mistaken; my name is Muggins, and I live in Skaneateles." The stranger apologizes and disappears, and just around the corner a confederate comes up, calls Mr. Muggins by his own name, and is voluble about matters and things in Skaneateles. This is a plan bywhich even municipal dignitaries from the interior are sometimes beguiled. It was practiced a few days ago in Boston upon a New-England Deacon, who owns a stocking-mill in Massachusetts. He came to the city, sold his wares, and met a man who accosted him as an old acquaintance, and in the flush of the renewed intimacy, got all his money.

But a commoner and coarser method of the predatory class is to approach the victim with frank and honest sincerity. saying "I don't know you, but I like your looks." This seems universally effective. A day or two ago, a singularly striking instance of the efficacy of this plan of plunder was seen in New York. An Indian trader from the Far West, one of those men whose life is a continual struggle for existence by means of the exercise of the sharpest and strongest faculties of observation and judgment, a man who had gained a fortune by sagacious trade on the border, risked his life and lost his property by means of this idiotic confidence. A total stranger accosted him on the cars and entered into conversation with him. He opened his heart to him instantly, and on arriving in this city they had already become "pardners." Instead of spending his money at hotels, he went to the house of the ostensible "Sister" of his new Pylades. As a matter of course, he was found the next morning wandering half-naked in the streets, drugged almost to unconsciousness. His trunk and his money are in the keeping of his friend and his friend's sister wherever they may be.

It is hard to be compelled to preach a sermon of cynicism. But unless every stranger learns the lesson of wholesome distrust, he would do well to stay away from large cities. A man who forces himself upon your acquaintance with offers of friendship and service, intends to rob or swindle you. No one will fall in love with you at first sight, and if he tells you so, he is after your pocket-book. But this may be said and repeated to the end of time, without putting men and women on their guard against swindlers. Vanity is stronger than common sense or experience. No one is safe from the confidence man, unless he is convinced of his own ugliness. To say to the average mortal, "I like your looks," in the phrase and manner suited to his degree of cultivation, is the surest way to convince him of your own taste and candor. There are few men living who are not more pleased, in their heart of hearts, at a personal compliment than at any eulogy upon their goodness or their righteous fame. The confidence man's whole stock in trade is this reliance upon human vanity. His only chance of a livelihood is making people believe that their prepossessing appearance has attracted him. And every day shows how easy a task it is. A man of ordinary ignorance may hold the severest views of flattery in the abstract, but he hears nothing but truth and discretion in the voice of the concrete flatterer. There would seem to be no remedy for the confidence-game, except to adopt the English religion which has been so much laughed at, and never grant your acquaintance except upon a proper introduction; and if any man or woman tells you he likes your looks, the best way is to call the police.—New York Times.

Pleasing Interview with Nast.

A reporter of the Chicago Times recently interviewed Thomas Nast, and found him speechless as a natural result of his extended lecture. Mr. Nast, however, made out, with the aid of his crayon, to make himself understood, and a lively conversation was the result. We quote:

"Would you have any objections to being interviewed, Mr. Nast?"

A spasm of pain crossed the artist's face for a moment, and then rushing to the bed he dived down under it, and brought out a large blackboard. Seizing a piece of crayon, he vigorously commenced scratching upon it, and in a few seconds the reporter beheld a prostrate figure of Nast writhing in the agonies of death, while upon his body sat six able-bodied men poking him in the short ribs with lead pencils and note books. This led the reporter to infer that Mr. Nast did not like being interviewed.

Reporter—"But why, Mr. Nast? What do you think of reporters?"

The caricaturist here drew a pump with a quillist vigorously working the handle.

R.—"You think they ask too many questions. But do they not always tell the truth in regard to their interviews?"

The figure of George Washington armed with his little hatchet was hastily sketched upon the board, and underneath it the single word "Reporter."

R.—"I see you appreciate their veracity. Pray, tell me, do you enjoy Chicago?"

A picture of a boned turkey, champagne, gin cocktails, and calumet snipe, fried, hastily followed.

After remarks as to some local celebrities, the conversation proceeded.

R.—"Are you meeting with much success in your entertainments?"

A picture of a railway train loaded with greenbacks and each car ticketed, "Th. Nast," followed.

R.—"How much do you expect to make in Chicago?"

A Masonic eye with a well developed wink was drawn.

R.—"Do you really labor from patriotism, and do you think President Grant the modern condensation of Achilles, Cato and Cæsar?"

The artist here drew a nose that looked a great deal like his own, and upon the end of it a thumb with four fingers extended at a wiggle.

R.—"I have been much pleased with you, Mr. Nast, and should like to know you more intimately. I shall take pleasure in calling again. Of course it will be agreeable to you?"

The artist hastily drew a number ten boot, elevated at an angle of forty five degrees, and hastily nestled its extremities under just such a coat as the reporter wore.

Inferring from this that Mr. Nast would be pleased to see him again, the reporter refused the kind offer of a dozen parquette reserved seat tickets and withdrew.

Scenes in a Smoking Car.

An amusing incident occurred recently in the smoking car of a C. C. and I. C Railroad train between Shelby and this city, says the Cleveland Times. A woman with a poodle dog entered the car just prior to the departure of the train from the former point, and after depositing her dog in one seat, turned over the back of another. Together she and her canine companion thus monopolized two entire seats. Appearances seemed to indicate that the car was one exclusively for the convenience of those addicted to the use of the "weed;" and of this fact she was soon apprised by the conductor, who advised her to obtain a seat in another car, informing her at the same time that the accommodations in the way of seats in the other coaches were superior to those where she was then. However, she insisted on remaining, urging that her presence would deter the occupants of the car from smoking, and she would consequently experience no discomfort from tobacco fumes. Long before the train reached this city, however, a gentleman sitting directly in front of her produced his case, and, taking therefrom a cigar, began puffing away at it in a manner which seemed peculiarly calculated to aggravate the woman back of him. In an instant, strategic movement, she wrested the obnoxious cigar from his mouth and threw it out of the window, exclaiming, "if there is anything I do hate, it is tobacco smoke." The passengers who had witnessed the affair were convulsed with laughter, but the offending smoker suppressed whatever emotions may have been struggling for expression in words or action, and maintained throughout the same imperturbable gravity which had characterized him from the first. Calmly rising from his seat, he opened the window nearest him, fastening it up, and reaching over the seat back, took that woman's poodle dog and threw him out of the window as far beyond as possible, at the same time saying, "If there is anything I do hate, it's a poodle dog!"

New Mexican Pie-Biters.

The people of New Mexico originate some curious societies. In Mesilla and Las Cruces they have—or it is said they have—what are known as "Pie-Biters," composed of persons passionately fond of pies. So strong has the rivalry grown between the two societies that a challenge resulted, and the contest is reported to have been as follows: "The pies were to be mince and one inch thick, Mesilla to bite first, and no bite to count unless it reached the centre of the pie. Mesilla piled up nine pies and shut down on them without an effort. Las Cruces elevated the top of his head and closed his jaws over eleven. (Great enthusiasm among his friends.)—Mesilla came to the scratch, or bite, manfully, and flopped his lip over a dozen successfully. (Odds offered on Mesilla.) Las Cruces, at this point, said. "Well, it is time to stop this nonsense; hand me fifteen." They were given him; he smiled, laid the back of his head on his shoulders, and came down on the bundle of pies like an alligator on a mouthful of flies. But his teeth did not come together. He struggled and jerked, but it was no use. Three of his teeth broke, and his hold gave away. On examining, a dog-collar was found in the center pie, and Las Cruces had got his teeth tangled in the buckle. Jack Martin, the referee, decided in favor of Mesilla, on the ground that everything was fair in a mince pie.

A POOR family in Denison, Ohio, consisting of a husband, a wife, and seven children, were on the point of starvation. Somebody raised $100 for them, and what did the wife do with it? She bought a new silk dress for $70, and began to take music lessons.

Circulation LARGER than any other Paper in the Juniata Valley.

Laws Relating to Newspaper Subscriptions and Arrearages.

The following is the law relating to newspapers and subscribers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered wishing to continue their subscription.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have settled their bills, and ordered them discontinued.
4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publishers, and the papers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.
5. The Courts have decided that "refusing to take periodicals from the office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.
6. Any person who receives a newspaper and makes use of it, whether he has ordered it or not, is held in law to be a subscriber.
7. If subscribers pay in advance, they are bound to give notice to the publisher, at the end of their time, if they do not wish to continue taking it; otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it on, and the subscriber will be responsible until an express notice, with payment of all arrears, is sent to the publisher.

Republican County Committee Meeting

The members of the Republican County Committee will meet, at the Court House, in Huntingdon, on THURSDAY, the 11th day of JUNE,

A. D., 1874, at 1½ o'clock, P. M.

Business of importance to be transacted, and a full attendance of the members of the Committee is earnestly requested.

J. HALL MUSSER,
Chairman County Committee.

☞ A typographical error occurred in the call for the Republican County Committee as published in this paper last week. It will be found all right in this issue.—We are responsible for the error and are sorry that it occurred.

☞ The Meadville Republican, one of our ablest and best exchanges, several weeks ago, was enlarged and improved. We are glad to notice this evidence of our friends prosperity. He deserves much at the hands of the Republicans of Crawford.

☞ Hon. Thomas A. Scott has been elected President of the Pennsylvania Railroad to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of J. Edgar Thompson, esq. Great confidence is entertained in the eminent ability of Colonel Scott, and already the stock of the road is approaching par value.

☞ Since our last issue Mr. Richardson has retired from the Treasury Department and General Bristow, of Kentucky, has been nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate, and has resumed his duties of Secretary of the Treasury in his stead. Mr. Richardson has been appointed and confirmed a Judge of the Court of Claims.

☞ Our friend, Geo. T. Swank, esq., editor of the Johnstown Tribune, has been appointed, by the President and confirmed by the Senate, postmaster at that place.—It is really a wonder that an editor should be thus complimented. The Johnstown people must be a queer kind of people.—In Huntingdon such a thing would not be permitted! We congratulate the Tribune.

☞ The Somerset Herald contains the announcement that Wm. H. Koontz, of that place, will be a candidate for Congress from that county subject to the decision of the voters at the primary election. Cessna and Williams are aspirants in Bedford, while in Blair county it is said that Mr. Blair will be a candidate. In our own county Mr. Barker is a candidate. The final contest promises to be lively.—Cambria Herald.

☞ Our old friend, of the Hollidaysburg Register, is sadly in error, we think, when he says that if Mr. Williams became the choice of Bedford county, for Congress, "he would not have a ghost of a chance for the nomination." Mr. Williams, we are satisfied, stands quite as well with the people of Somerset and Cambria, and we really think, Blair too, as Mr. Cessna does. He has no ugly record, no broken pledges and promises, is a splendid business man—one of the most successful in Southern Pennsylvania—and just such an honest business man as the great district composed of Bedford, Somerset, Cambria and Blair, with its great mineral and other interests, should have in Congress.

☞ The Altoona Sun is respectfully informed that "Prof." Guss does not stand "one ahead in the Radical camp," in this county, nor will we allow the Democracy to shove him upon us. He has no part nor lot with the Republican party. He voluntarily deserted the Republican Convention last year and set up for himself to aid the Democracy; he was unceremoniously kicked out of the Republican State Convention at Harrisburg; his paper was repudiated by the Republican Convention here and a Republican Legislature advised a Republican State Administration to take his school from him and it did so. If he does not belong to the Democracy it is because the individual members of that party refuse to affiliate with him. We have no doubt that he is a bitter pill to swallow, but he has been your "tender," now have the manliness to take him into full fellowship.

☞ A new Postal Bill has been agreed upon by the Postal Committee of the House of Representatives, which directs all newspaper and periodical matter to be prepaid at the rate of one and a half cents per pound, save that newspapers in the counties in which they are printed are to circulate free, and a free exchange of newspapers and periodicals not exceeding one pound in weight. The large city dailies, always striving to monopolize the publishing business, are crying out against the latter provision above stated. No farmer or mechanic should patronize a paper which takes so narrow a view of his interests. After a free circulation of a quarter of a century, with only a slight interruption, subscribers to country newspapers were made to pay postage to punish the papers for criticising the Credit Mobillier business, and the sooner Congress takes off this embargo upon the circulation of intelligence the sooner it will show its appreciation of the sentiments of the masses which they represent.

☞ This is the way father Frysinger goes for the italic man of the Sentinel:—"The muddler down street who is as poor a judge of "corners" as the Irishmen who swallowed a straddle-bug for a persimmon was of the latter, has hopes that the Grangers will swallow the Democracy, so as to beat the Republicans. We suspect when the Grangers want a cathartic they will hardly swallow tadpoles, even if sprinkled with hayseed to create it."

OUTRAGED BECAUSE NOT PERSECUTED.

The "Professor" of Beastliness and Billingsgate, in his budget of grievances, charges and recriminations, on Saturday, the 20th ult., said:

"They have not deigned to notice me till this week, when they say that Sheriff Houck will get rid of his menagerie on the 29th."

Again, Lytle said:

"Their organ has barely noticed the fact of his imprisonment. If it had not been for the Globe many of you would not have known that he has been spending the early heated term at the county's water cure."

The Globe made a similar admission a week or two previously. This fellow coveted persecution—we could not gratify him.

The following fable illustrates our position fairly:

A FABLE.

NOT BY ÆSOP.

A Fox and a Skunk were inhabitants of the same locality, and through the offensiveness of the latter several altercations took place, in which the skunk was fearfully worsted. Unable to cope with his antagonist, (the fox,) he determined to assail all the friends of the latter, thinking thereby to punish him, but one of the other foxes, in self-defence, pursued the offensive creature vigorously, and drove him into a rocky cavern beneath the cover of a hill, and placed a guard over him so that he could not escape therefrom. Here, with the permission of the guard, he was visited by many of his fellows, and they induced the silly creature to believe that he was persecuted for righteousness sake. They said: "Oh, skunk, whose odor is most pleasing to our sense of smell, how we admire thee! Thou art a great one and must be a saint! Covet persecution and all will be well with thee. Surely thou art a great skunk and all the little skunks in the land will fall down and worship thee." The skunk, in pursuance of this advice, coveted a repetition of the previous flayings, at the hands of his former antagonist, but the fox refused to pay any attention to his noxious neighbor, which was very annoying and vexatious to the skunk. At last, unable to contain his chagrin longer, and swelling big with vanity, he cried to the fox: "Oh, fox, why persecutest thou not me?" The fox was overheard to remark to the by-standers that he "had no special fondness for the smell of the animal, and that the less stirring up he did the less offensiveness would be dished up for his neighbors. If left to himself the skunk must die of his own nastiness, and as far as he (the fox) was concerned, the skunk was holed and he could just skunk it out!"

MORAL.—Never meddle with a skunk when he covets it.

News and Notes from Washington.

Congress—Appropriation Bills — Cheap Transportation—The Freedmen's Savinds Banks to be Investigated—Secretary Bristow Goes to Work—Judge Richardson—Meeting of the National Republican Committee to be Called.

WASHINGTON, June 8, 1874.

CONGRESSIONAL ACTIVITY.

A large amount of work has been done in Congress during the past week. The Senate meets at 11 o'clock, an hour earlier than usual, and the House has an extra evening session each day. Some of the appropriation bills still hang between the Senate and the House, but is believed by Senators and Representatives that they will all be completed before the 22d inst., the proposed day of adjournment.

The deficiency appropriation bill, which was returned to the House with the Senate amendments, increasing the appropriations passed by the House very materially, was considered by the House Appropriation Committee on Thursday. Nearly all the Senate amendments were stricken out, and those retained were largely reduced. A conference committee will consider and report upon the bill. The committee have also disagreed to all the amendments of the Senate to the Indian appropriation bill, and ask for a Committee of Conference. They have agreed to the Senate amendments to the Military Academy and consular and diplomatic appropriation bills and recommend their passage.

CHEAP TRANSPORTATION.

Mr. Windom, chairman of the Transportation Committee is pressing Congress to provide for a survey of the four through routes recommended by the Select Committee on Transportation. These routes are:

1. The Mississippi River.
2. A continuous water line of adequate capacity from the Mississippi river to the city of New York, via the Northern Lakes.
3. A route adequate to the wants of commerce through the central tier of States, from the Mississippi river via. the Ohio and Kanawha rivers, to a point in West Virginia, and thence by a canal and slack water, or by a freight railway to tide-water.
4. A route from the Mississippi river, via. the Ohio and Tennessee rivers, to a point in Alabama or Tennessee, and thence by canal and slack water, or by freight railway to the ocean.

In pressing Congress for an appropriation for making the necessary surveys, Mr. Windom said it was not his intention to go over the subject of cheap transportation again, as the committee had fully reviewed it. His object now was to obtain an expression of the views of the Senate on the subject. The cost of these surveys would be in the neighborhood of $200,000. He came before the Senate with the firm conviction that to carry out the system of improvements recommended by the committee would reduce the cost of living to the farmers and mechanics and laboring people at least fifty per cent. He believed the Committee on Transportation was correct in the conclusion that the enhanced value of lands in eight States alone would be $1,000,000,000 upon the completion of the improvements recommended. He hoped the resolution would have no opposition, but be passed, so that hereafter, when the Senate should be called upon to act upon this system of improvements, it might do so with intelligence.

A debate followed, in which the proposition of Mr. Windom was favorably entertained; but pending the resolution the Senate went into executive Session.

THE FREEDMAN'S SAVINGS BANKS IN A BAD WAY.

It is generally known that a Freedman's Savings and Trust Company was incorporated under a law of Congress, at an early period of the war. Under the authority quite a number of Freedmen's Savings Banks were opened in Southern cities, the central one of which is in Washington. The colored people have deposited their savings in these banks, and the aggregate now amounts to many millions of dollars. During the panic last fall there was a run upon the bank at headquarters in Washington, which the directors managed to weather by paying as long as they could command funds and then taking advantage of the 60 days notice claimed to be provided for in the charter. Had the "run" extended to the branches further South, the Directors would have been compelled to close, according to their own admission to confidential friends at the time. These banks have not had the confidence of the communities where they are established since the pressure of last fall. Congress, in order to protect the depositors, has taken action in the matter. The House passed a bill, and Senator Scott, from the Senate Committee on Finance, on Wednesday reported favorably on the House bill to amend the charter of the Freedman's Saving and Trust Company, and the bill passed. It provides that within ten days after its enactment the Comptroller of the Currency shall appoint three commissioners, who, under his direction and the control of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall take possession of the books and all the assets of the bank and its branches, and proceed to wind up all the business of said bank and its branches and pay into the United States Treasury all the money realized therefrom. The Comptroller of the Currency is to declare and pay dividends as the results may justify. The commissioners are to receive a salary of $3,000 per annum and give bonds of $25,000 each. It is provided, however, that, if, in the progress of winding up the affairs, the commissioner and Comptroller of the Currency shall at any time be of the opinion that the bank can resume under its old charter, they may, with the consent of the Secretary of the Treasury, turn it over to the Board of Trustees, who shall then resume their present powers.

It is not believed that there has been any intentional fraud in connection with these banks; but they have been under the control of inexperienced managers, and injudicious investments have been made. This, with the pressure caused by the crisis, has paralyzed their operations, and legislative supervision is authorized in order to secure the property from being sacrificed at the expense of the directors.

THE NEW SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

Secretary Bristow was confirmed by a unanimous vote of the Senate. He has taken the oath of office, received his commission and entered upon the duties of his office. Secretary Bristow takes charge of the Treasury under very favorable auspices, and apparently in the enjoyment of the confidence of the two great political parties. Verily our President has made one appointment at least with which no one is disposed to find fault. There is no doubt that the new Secretary is a man of superior business abilities as a lawyer, and after a little practice in the new harness, it is believed he will meet and master the responsibilities of the U. S. Treasury with success and with satisfaction to all parties.

JUDGE RICHARDSON.

The retiring Secretary goes into the Court of Claims at a salary of $4,000 (not $6,000 as has been reported). His confirmation in the Senate was by a vote of 20 to 27. As Secretary of the Treasury Mr. Richardson was put under a cloud through political opposition, rather than from any serious lack of official capacity. We have had abler Secretaries, but he always enjoyed the confidence of his predecessor and the President, and no two men in the community were better qualified to judge of his fitness for the position. But he never would yield to the presumptious demands of "Newspaper Row" which became, to some extent the object of attack by some of the "great dailies" of the Metropolitan cities. He did not care to remain under the fire, and sent in his resignation.

MEETING OF THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE.

A call for a meeting of the National Republican Convention in Washington, at an early day, is contemplated. The object is to consult in regard to the political situation, and to confer with members of Congress, before adjournment, concerning the fall campaign.

THE CROPS.

The Agricultural Bureau continues to receive very favorable reports in reference to the hay and cereal crops throughout the country. Mississippi wheat is already in the market.

N. H. P.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Election of Col. Thomas A. Scott to Succeed the Late J. Edgar Thomson.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—The special meeting of the board of directors of the Pennsylvania railroad company was held to-day. The object of this meeting was to fill the vacancy in the office of President caused by the death of the late J. Edgar Thomson. There was a full attendance of the board.

An election was at once held for president of the road, resulting in the unanimous choice of Colonel Thomas A. Scott, the first vice president.

By this promotion the position of first vice president was vacated, and George B. Roberts, second vice president, was selected without a dissenting vote.

After his election was announced Colonel Scott arose and briefly addressed the members of the board, thanking them for the distinction which they had conferred on him, and promising in his new position to exert every effort for the highest welfare of the company.

Mr. Roberts followed with remarks in a similar vein.

An election for second vice president vice Roberts promoted, is yet to take place, the directors adjourning without filling that position.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

Colonel Thomas Alexander Scott, who has been elected president, as successor to the late J. Edgar Thomson is now in his fiftieth year, having been born in Loudon, Franklin county, on December 28, 1824. After serving as a clerk in several country stores he became the clerk of Major James Patton, his brother-in-law, who was collector of tolls at Columbia, on the state road. He next became a clerk in the extensive warehouse and commission establishment of the Leeches, at Columbia. In 1847 he left his position to come to Philadelphia as chief clerk to A. Boyd Cummings, the collector of tolls at the eastern terminus of the public works. Finally, in 1850, he entered the regular service of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company being stationed at Duncanville, as general agent of the Mountain or Eastern Division of the road. On the completion of the western division, he was placed in charge of that section, but was soon made the successor of General Herman J. Lombart, who retired on account of ill health, as general superintendent of the entire line. In 1859, on the death of the Hon. Wm. B. Foster, the vice President of the road, he was elected to that position, and retained in it uninterruptedly up to the time of Mr. Thomson's death, being designated first vice President after it became necessary to divide his duties.

At the outbreak of the war in 1861, Col. Scott became the assistant of Governor Curtin, in equipping and forwarding troops to the field. He was soon called to Washington, as assistant secretary of war, in charge of transportation and supplies, a position which he held until May, 1862, when his railroad duties called him back to Philadelphia.

Colonel Scott's labors, however, have not been confined to one company. He has been from its organization in March, 1871, the president of the Pennsylvania company, the agency through which the western roads leased by the Pennsylvania railroad are operated; president of the Pan Handle route (Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis railroad), since March, 1871; president of the Union Pacific railroad, from March, 1871, to March, 1872, when this road passed under the control of Vanderbilt; president of the Texas Pacific railroad since its organization on April 15, 1871; president of the Atlantic and Pacific railroad, which is the thirty-fifth parallel of latitude, since August 9, 1873; a controlling director of the Southern railway security company, which has the management of a great network of roads in the South, and a director of the Kansas Pacific, Denver and Pacific, Denver and Rio Grande (narrow gauge), and numerous other roads; while he has just declined the position of president of the Erie railway of New York.

Fever and Ague, Chill Fever, &c.

A few months after having commenced the manufacture of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the proprietor began to receive numerous letters from all parts of the Western and Southern States bestowing the most unbounded praise upon it for having promptly cured the writers or their friends of Fever and Ague, or other forms of miasmatic, or malarious diseases. He was repeatedly urged to make known the wonderful virtues of the Discovery in the cure of Ague and kindred diseases. He always replied that it was not intended for a "cure all," and should he recommend it to people as a remedy for so many different forms and classes of disease, he feared those who had never tested its virtues would at once class it among the numerous humbugs of the day. This answer was satisfactory to no one; they argued that the whole country ought to know it at once, and expressed their astonishment at his indifference to the subject. His ear and heart being at all times open to the call of suffering humanity, he has at last, after having received testimony from hundreds who have been speedily cured by it, and many of them after quinia and all the usual means had failed, consented to make the matter known.

NEWMAN, Jeff. Co., Kan., Zan. 6, 1873.

DR. PIERCE:

Dear Sir—Having used a few bottles of your Golden Medical Discovery, and believing it to be the very best medicine for Chills and Fever I wish to buy the dozen, please give me your price for it.

"WE AND OUR NEIGHBORS"

is the latest and raciest work by

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE,

Author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Minister's Wooing," "My Wife and I,"

and other powerful stories, each the literary sensation of its period; and this story promises a like genuine and wholesome sensation. It bears directly on social topics of interest, embracing the romance of youthful companionships, the brightness of happy home-life, the spicy complications of neighborhood associations, and such follies and profound domestic miseries as have led to the wide spread Temperance movement of the day.

Mrs. Stowe is now in the prime of that genius which wrote "Uncle Tom," ripened by years of study and observation. Her novels are immensely popular, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" alone out-selling by hundreds of thousands any edition of any original work ever published—save the Bible. Her book two years ago, "My Wife and I," outsold every contemporary. Such a pure and ennobling story as "We and Our Neighbors" should be read in every home. This new Serial is now running exclusively in the Amusing--The item in the Local News describing the silver-headed (?) cane presentation in the M. E. Sabbath School, at Scottsville. And more so still--for fidelity in the discharge of Sabbath School duties on the part of the recipient! Sublime!

On the 30th ult. Rev. M. K. Foster, P. E., held a quarterly meeting at Scottsville. In the morning he preached a plain, practical sermon on the Bible, as touching man's present moral and future condition. In the evening he went to Shade Gap to hold quarterly meeting.

Col. McCrum, of the Altoona Tribune, dropped in the other day. He talks of going into the lumber business. He wants more outdoor exercise. Twenty-six years of continued in-door service creates a desire for more active duties. He does not intend yielding up the tripod, however, at present.

David Mentzer, of Oneida township, went fishing, on Wednesday evening, in the direction of the Huntingdon dam, and with a single hook, rod and line, succeeded in pulling out fifteen eels and several "catties." He now challenges all christendom and the orient to beat this. David is ahead as far as heard from.

Levi W. Brenniman, esq., of Philadelphia, dropped in the other day. This is the first time, with a single exception, that we have had the pleasure of meeting him since the Fremont campaign of 1856. An unmarried young man by the name of Frank Hamilton, and of Coalmont, fell off a coal train, near Barnetstown, on the 1st inst., cutting and mangling his leg that amputation was necessary. A tremendous rain fell in Tell township, on Saturday a week ago, which damaged the corn and bridges very much. The miller's family at Silverthorn's mill had to get out of the house and flee to the mill for safety, as at one time it was thought the house would be swept away. The fences along the Tuscarora Creek were nearly all swept away.

At the elections, held in the 2nd and 3rd Wards, on Saturday last, to determine whether a change should be made in the places of holding the respective elections in said Wards, 56 votes were cast in the 2nd and 63 in the 3rd, all in favor of a change. The election in the 2nd will be held, at the Engine House, in the future, and that of the 3rd at the office of Mr. James Simpson, in said Ward.

Quite an excitement was created, about four o'clock, P. M., on Friday last, on Washington street, caused by the running away of a black horse attached to a one-horse vehicle, owned by a German named Miller. The horse kept the street from Second up to Fifth, where it turned off short at Colstocks' corner and fell down on the pavement. This brought things to statu quo. Several school children made a narrow escape.

"Why don't you get out of the way of that horse?" shouted a dozen voices to an excited individual in front of a runaway the other day. His reply was "what the deuce do I care about a runaway horse when I can buy Envelopes at 45 cents per box and Commercial Note Paper at 10 cents per quire at the JOURNAL Stationery Store!" They subsided, and adjourned to take a look at the great object of attraction.

The Baptist Sabbath School, at Scottsville, is now in a decidedly prosperous condition, far outstripping any of the others in numbers, harmony of feeling and regularity in attendance, both on the part of teachers and scholars. These things result from the fact, in part, that the superintendent is not a tool for any clique or faction; and is a moral and Christian man, in whom the parents of the children have confidence.

A young man named Nevin Davis, who was assisting to remove an old barn on the farm of Samuel Morrow, Sinking Valley, preparatory to the erection of a new one, met with an accident on Wednesday last which resulted in his death on the following day. He was struck on the head by a heavy piece of timber, which fractured his skull and otherwise injured him. Deceased was about twenty-one years of age, resided at Shaversville, Huntingdon county, and leaves a wife to mourn his death.--Hollidaysburg Standard.

PASSED OUT.--And they were joined in holy wedlock at the exact time appointed--6½ o'clock, p. m., Thursday, May 28, 1874--at the residence of the bride's parents, in Hartslog Valley, four and a half miles from Huntingdon. We mean our energetic, valuable and agreeable citizen, Mr. C. J. Kegel, and Miss Anna D., one of Livingston and Mary Robb's handsome and accomplished daughters. Mr. R. G. McCanahen, of Tyrone, acted as groomsman, and Ellie M., sister of the bride, bridesmaid. Rev. J. C. Barr officiated, by delivering a short, pointed and imposing ceremony, following which Rev. S. Moore invoked divine blessings to rest upon the then happy couple, in the shape of a brief and appropriate prayer. The accomplished bride was attired in an elaborate and most handsomely erected white swiss suit, pearl colored shoes and white kid gloves, and an elegantly constructed artificial flower wreath crowning her head. The groom was fashionably dressed in a suit of black, with his chin whiskers and mustache fixed up to perfection--just right for the occasion upon which they were used.--And the bridesmaid and groomsman deserve notice for the expensive and tasty manner in which they were attired. The officiating minister, the groom and the reporter wore Japanese cloth dusters on their way to and from the herein-before and-after-mentioned occasion. Among the presents--handsomely decorating a large table--were silver ware, comprising elegant castor, cake dish, and--well, it was a big table, and full. And then that supper which followed the ceremony! But how Samuel T. did wish for a thousand tongues, and "we" for that many and just one more. But, we hereby give notice that we never served a full apprenticeship at carving turkeys, hence we never "learned the business out," and beg to be excused the next time, unless the bride has a sister who is an adept at the business, and is willing to come to our rescue just about the time the color and perspiration begins to make themselves hugely visible on that portion of our make up which surrounds the nose. We might name a dozen or two of the guests, but a hundred others would be slighted, hence we omit all. The groom and his accomplished bride, together with a dozen others were seated in spring wagons and on their way to Huntingdon at ten, the former taking the eastern train at twelve, some of the latter taking the western train and the balance returning to the country. And now Johnny has filled his part of the "Sardine" and "Matrimonial" contract. May the earthly journey of the newly made husband and wife be that of happiness and prosperity, and a triumphant exit from this world be their portion at a ripe old age. Next!--Tyrone Herald.

AT a stated meeting of the Huntingdon Fire Company, No. 1, the following resolutions were adopted:

1st. That, as members of the Huntingdon Fire Company, we emphatically decline to pay the Huntingdon Agricultural Society any compensation for the use of their grounds at their last fair.

2d. Because they failed to comply with the contract made with us, when we undertook to lease the right to erect booths on their grounds.

3d. Because, upon a fair hearing of a committee from our company, the Agricultural Society entirely released us from the payment of any sum which they had alleged to be due them.

4th. That we heartily condemn the action of the Agricultural Society in their unnecessary failure to pay to the Vigilant Fire Company, of Altoona, the premium won by them at the contest on the 10th of October, 1873.

I'm sorry, Paddy, dear,
That ye're heart is full of throuble;
But wedded bliss, 'tis clear,
Resimbles much a bubble.

'Tis plisent to the eye,
But whin ye sthrive to take it
It will ye're art defy;
In ye're agerness ye'll break it.

Now, Paddy, list to me,
Some sage advice I'll tender;
I'll wager one to three,
By strategy ye'll bend her.

Put on ye're Sunday clothes,
Tell her to don her bonnet,
The very bist she has,
Wid hollyhocks upon it.

Thin take the mornin' thrain--
Ye'll find it at the station;
I'm puzzling sore me brain
To impart this information.

But take ye're darlin down,
As nobby as a colonel,
To Huntingdon's fair town,
To the office of the JOURNAL.

If, after that, she goes
To tay-parthy or quiltin,
Continually she'll blow
About the JOURNAL buildin.

Thin customers will fill
The shtore of uncle Josey,
And joy again will shmile
Upon yere home so cosy,

Or else I am very much mistaken.

SAD ACCIDENT.--DEATH ON THE RIVER.--A sad accident occurred on the Delaware at about seven o'clock this morning. Mr. Zachariah Gemmill, an old, well-known citizen and merchant of Philadelphia, fell from one of the Market Street Ferry boats, when passing the upper end of the island, and was drowned.

Mr. Gemmill has complained of dizziness for several days past, and seems to have been crossing the river simply for the benefit of the fresh morning air. He was sitting on the rail of the boat when he fell over backward. Instant efforts were made to rescue him, and the captain of the boat succeeded in grappling his coat-skirt with a boat-hook. The material gave away, and the unfortunate gentleman floated out of reach, the absence of any struggle on his part indicating that his fall had been caused by a stroke of appoplexy. The body was recovered by another ferry-boat, but although it was not in the water over twenty minutes in all, and had not sunk after the first fatal plunge, life was wholly extinct.

Mr. Gemmill was about 61 years of age. He came to Philadelphia from Huntingdon county in 1837, and in 1841 formed the partnership of Z. Gemmill & Co., and afterward of Gemmill & Cresswell, a house which has always sustained a high reputation among our dry good jobbers, and which is continued in the hands of the second generation of its founders.

Mr. Gemmill was in his usual place, yesterday at the Tenth Presbyterian Church, of which he was an old an honored member. In all the relations of life, both private and commercial, he leaves behind him an unblemished record, and a large circle of friends who loved him for his many virtues, and who will deeply mourn the sudden loss they have thus sustained.--Philadelphia Bulletin, June 1.

THE EXEMPTION STATUTE.--Among the important laws passed by the recent Legislature is one relating to the exemption of property from levy and sale on executions and distress for rent, declaring the waiver thereof by a debtor, except in certain cases, void. We give the bill in full as it passed both Houses. It reads:

Be it enacted, &c., That on and after the fourth day of July next, no waiver except as hereinafter provided, by any debtor, a resident of this Commonwealth, who is the head of a family, of the benefit or right to claim exemption of property from the levy and sale upon execution and distress for rent that is now or may hereafter be allowed or exempted by the laws of this Commonwealth, shall be valid, any debtor making such waiver or any agreement thereof or any member of the family of such debtor may claim and demand and shall be entitled to such exemption the same as if no such waiver or agreement thereof had been made; Provided, That this act shall not effect or apply to any waiver or agreement thereof made prior to the fourth day of July next, nor shall this act affect or apply to any obligation, agreement or indebtedness entered in or contracted for the purchase of real estate: and provided further, That this act shall not effect or apply to any waiver of inquisition or confession of condemnation of real estate made by any defendant as is provided by "An act relating to executions," approved June 16th, Anno Domini 1836.

A SAD ACCIDENT.--A LITTLE BOY CRUSHED TO DEATH.--On Friday evening last, about seven o'clock, a horse became frightened and dashed up an alley, leading from Moore to Oneida street, in which there were several small boys, one of these a son, aged about four years, of Frank Clouse, who resides near the head of the alley. When the boys discovered the horse they ran for a pile of building logs on Oneida street. Young Clouse succeeded in reaching the cover and immediately afterwards the horse ran against the pile and threw it down, crushing the head of the little fellow beneath the logs. He expired in a few moments. We deeply sympathize with the bereaved parents in their sore affliction.

FLEMING'S COMBINATION FENCE.--This is one of the most durable, ornamental and complete fences in use, and so cheap that every person can have one. A sample of this fence can be seen at the residence of Dr. R. A. Miller, Penn street. Cemetery Lots neatly fenced. A reduction is made on all church fences. Price, $1.25 per foot. Call and see sample of work at Dr. Miller's. For further particulars call on Merrill & Carter, at the Franklin House.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

A TRIP TO SHIRLEY.

SHIRLEYSBURG, June 2, 1874.

MR. EDITOR:--Having lived a number of years in Huntingdon, read and heard of the place called Fort Shirley, from which the town derives its name, yet never having had any business in this section of the county we had not the pleasure of seeing the town or beautiful valley in which it is located. After a pleasant ride of twenty minutes, on the pleasant and commodious passenger cars of the East Broad Top railroad, we arrived safely here, and much to our surprise found a very long but not very broad town, and after inquiring for a hotel were directed to the "Mansion House," kept by mine host, E. Eyler.--After partaking of a substantial dinner we wended our way to the County Alms House, with a view to looking out quarters, but after having informed the Steward that we were endeavoring to do something for the JOURNAL, he declared that it had given him decided puffs in the past year or so, and we were inclined to think it might not be the best place in the world for a man out of the Woods; yet, after a few minutes' conversation, on other more pleasant subjects, we changed our opinion of John Logan, and found him a real jolly old fellow. Supper being announced we were urged to replenish the inner man. After supper we were shown through the entire building, from basement to attic, and we are free to say that it was in excellent condition, clean and airy, no stench, which is so generally met with in kindred institutions. Quite a number of unfortunate persons are domiciled in the building, yet they seem to be happy and contented, neatly and comfortably clad; many of them well advanced in years. In a building, separate from the Alms House proper, we saw a number of insane persons, some of whom are held under bolt and bar; others are permitted the privilege of the yard. Our visit ended and we returned to the hotel, and as is customary in the smaller towns all went to bed at an early hour. In the morning, after breakfast, we took a stroll through the long street, and after forming an acquaintance with the venerable Dr. Baird we were shown thro' his establishment, in which he has erected a Turkish bath, and also an arrangement for Medicated baths.

Our next visit was to the celebrated fire clay pottery of Mr. P. Kabis, and were shown through the establishment, and our attention was especially directed to a fire clay pump, in which there is no wear out. In the language of the manufacturer, it will last forever, while they cost less than a wooden pump. The next article was a fruit jar, guaranteed to stand boiling water and all the cold they may be exposed to. Pots, pipes, yard ornaments and in fact everything found in a pottery can be had here, and which he sells at low prices.--The town contains some three or four churches, coach and wagonmaker shops, and a Steam Tannery. The people of the town seem to be very industrious, and there is scarcely any noise on the streets after nightfall, there being no curs yelping and howling to keep you awake after retiring to rest. I am fully satisfied that all the boys of the town combined do not make as much noise on the streets as three of our larks in Huntingdon. Another feature of the town is its cleanliness. Altogether we were much pleased with the people and the town, and left there with a promise to return and examine a large cave on the hill, west of the town, some future time, and will endeavor to give your readers a description of the place. No one has as yet went into this cavern more than two hundred yards for fear of being lost. J. H. D.

CATERPILLARS.

EDITOR JOURNAL:--In traveling over the parts of the county surrounding Huntingdon, I have recently noticed the unusually large numbers, and destructiveness of the caterpillars. In portions of Hartslog Valley I was surprised on observing at a distance many trees--wild cherry, apple, &c.,--looking as bare as in winter. On approaching them the fatal web of the destructive caterpillar was observed in every fork, on every limb. Many large apple trees are entirely, and others partially stripped of their leaves and the young fruit, whole orchards being thus affected and no effort made to destroy the destroyer. This is a sad state of affairs to exist in a valley so fertile, and occupied by as good and intelligent farmers as Hartslog. It is pitiable to see these otherwise beautiful young fruit trees struggling to make a summer's growth covered with these devastating worms. As their natural enemies, the birds, do not accomplish the work of destroying them, it should not be left undone, but an hour or two each day by one of the farm hands, should be devoted to it until not a trace of their fatal dens is allowed to remain. B.

FROM MAPLETON.

J. R. DURBORROW, Esq.--Dear Sir:--I notice that the Globe man in his issue of June 2d endeavors to cast some very unjust reflections on our P. M. in this place. Let me inform the public that our P. M. is a young lady. She informs me that she never returned a paper with D. L. Smith's name upon it to the Globe office. Mr. Smith, also, says that he does not recollect of his not receiving his paper, now then the query is did not D. L. Smith receive a Globe dated March 10th, 1874? How did A. L. Guss get it back marked "refused?" Who marked it "refused?" Who returned it to the Globe office? From what office was it returned? Was the paper A. L. Guss has ever out of his office? Why did he remain silent for near two months? Is not that article a little too thin? Yours, respectfully,

JUSTICE.

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.

A. B. Brumbaugh, M. D., Editor. All matter pertaining to this department should be addressed to P. O. Box 12, Huntingdon.

St. Nicholas has made another accession to its already unrivaled attractions. This time it has merged into itself that delightful little Philadelphia Magazine, "The Childrens' Hour" published by T. S. Arthur. We are sorry to lose The Childrens' Hour, but then we shall have increased attractions in St. Nicholas, and while the boys and girls miss the one, they will so much the more enjoy the other. We have so often spoken of the attractions of St. Nicholas that it seems unnecessary to say more now than to add that we had fears after the issue of the first number, that it would not maintain the position it had taken; but, instead of depreciating it has improved with each number, as the June number will fully verify, and now we are promised still more for July.

While St. Nicholas is so full of interest for the young, the Scribners have not forgotten to supply older minds with a magazine containing equally great attractions for them. Their Monthly for June contains, as usual, a pleasing variety.--Scribner & Co., N. Y.

The Galaxy, for June has contributions from Justin McCarthy. Albert Rhodes, Olive Logan, General Custer, Richard Grant White, Richard B. Kimball, Clemens Petersen, and other clever writers.

Several of the articles are quite full of interest, among which will be reckoned Mr. Petersen's sketch of Scandinavia; Mrs. Olive Logan Sikes' article upon voice training and professional singing; Richard Grant White's paper on the music of the future and Richard Wagoner, all of which will be read with interest.--Sholden & Company, N. Y.

Harper for June opens the forty-ninth volume of that well established magazine with unusual attractions. The articles are mainly from authors of deserving popularity. Bishop Gilbert Haven commences his series of articles on Mexico. Helen S. Conant gives an article on African Explorations, and traits of the race of pigmies. Charles G. Atkins' paper on collecting Salmon Spawn in Maine, in view of the interest now taken in the restoration of fish to our rivers is peculiarly timely. The most beautiful feature of this number is the reproduction of the Nymphidia by Michael Drayton, first published three years after Shakspeare's death. It is illustrated with ten engravings. These, with the many other articles make up an excellent number.--Harper & Bro. N. Y.

We have the pleasure of welcoming to our table that valuable periodical the Eclectic Magazine which comes every month laden with the best, chosen from the great mass of foreign literature. Those who once form the acquaintance of this Magazine seldom feel like dropping it. The June number complets the first half-yearly volume of 1874. This number is embellished with a portrait of Dr. Howard Crosby, D. D., the famous preacher. It contains articles from the British Quarterly Rrview, Popular Science Review, Temple Bar, Cornhill Magazine, The Spectator, Macmillan's Magazine, Frazer's Magazine, The Athenaum, etc., etc., upon such subjects as Antiquity of Man; David Livingston; Transmission of Sound; Manners and Customs in China; The Affections of Animals for Man; Dante; The Philology of Slang; The Wasts of the Universe, etc.--E. R. Pelton, N. Y.

Conjugal Sins Against the Laws of Life and Health, and their effect upon the Father, Mother and Child. By Augustus K. Gardner, A. M., M. D. Thirtieth Thousand. Revised Edition. New York. G. J. Moulton, 103 Fulton street. Cloth $1.50, paper $1.

Plain facts may be stated in a plain manner, and the truth loses nothing by being similarly set forth. There are truths enough, not yet told, and revelations not yet made relating to the subjects treated in this book, to convince the most incredulous, and startle the most stolid. The subjects here presented are exceedingly delicate, and difficult to present in the proper manner and true physiological light, without being superficial or shocking the sensibilities of some, yet Dr. Gardner has succeeded well with his task. The book is written in the best possible spirit, scientific and moral, and contains important information which no one, young or old should be without. The subjects treated commend themselves with great force to the earnest consideration of all those who have daughters to bring up; and the teaching of this book, and "Satan in Society" published by Mr. Vent, of N. Y., if observed would prove a blessing to our race, and save many lives.

"Conjucal Sins," by Dr. Gardner, and 'Schem's Statistics of the World" published by G. J. Moulton, will hereafter be supplied by Lee & Shepard, Boston.

CENTAUR LINIMENT.

There is no pain, which the Centaur Liniments will not relieve, no swelling they will not subdue, and no lameness which they will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. They have produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swelling, caked breasts, scalds, burns, salt-rheum, ear-ache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavin, galls, &c., upon the animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. They are counter-irritant, all healing pain relievers. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, posionous bites are rendered harmless and the wounded are healed without a scar. The recipe is published around each bottle. They sell as no article ever before sold, and they sell because they do just what they pretend to do. Those who now suffer from rhumatism, pain or swelling deserve to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment, white wrapper. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing certificates, the recipe &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners--these liniments are worth your attention. No family should be without them. "White wrapper for family use;" Yellow wrapper for animals. Sold by all Druggists. 50 cents per bottle; large bottles, $1.00. J. B. ROSE & Co., 53 Broadway, New York

CASTORIA is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and others may rest.

CUT THIS OUT, IT MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE.

There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Diseases, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced to this country from Germany, and its wonderous cures astonish everyone that try it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to your Druggist S. S. SMITH & SONS, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents, or a regular size for 75 cents.

WISHART'S

PINE TREE TAR CORDIAL.

NATURE'S GREAT REMEDY

FOR ALL

THROAT AND LUNG DISEASES!!

It is the vital principle of the Pine Tree, obtained by a peculiar process in the distillation of the tar, by which its highest medicinal properties are retained. Tar even in its crude state has been recommended by eminent physicians of every school. It is confidently offered to the afflicted for the following simple reasons:

1. It cures,--not by abruptly stopping the cough--but by dissolving the phlegm and assisting nature to throw off the unhealthy matter causing the irritation. In cases of seated Consumption it both prolongs and renders less burdensome the life of the afflicted sufferer.

2. Its healing principle acts upon the irritated surface of the lungs, penetrating to each diseased part, relieving pain, and subduing inflammation.

3. It purifies and enriches the blood. Positively curing all humors, from the common pimple or eruption to the severest cases of Scrofula. Thousands of affidavits could be produced from those who have felt the beneficial effects of Pine Tree Tar Cordial in the various diseases arising from impurities of the blood.

4. It invigorates the digestive organs and restores the appetite.

All who have known or tried Dr. L. Q. C. Wishart's remedies require no reference from us, but the names of thousands cured by them can be given to any one who doubts our statement. Dr. L. Q. C. Wishart's Great American Dyspepsia Pills and Worm Sugar Drops have never been equalled. For sale by all Druggists and Storekeepers, and at Dr. L. Q. C. WISHART'S Office, No. 232 N. Flax Cultivation in Nebraska.

It was once supposed that flax would only thrive on the sea shore; and hence Holland had what may be regarded as a great monopoly in the growth of flax, and the manufacture of linens. But the plant flourishes in Nebraska; and the soil is too rich for even this exhausting crop easily to affect it. The cultivation of the crop is therefore yearly increasing—at present with a view to the oil expressed from the seed, though (as there is now no linen manufacture worthy of the name in the State,) it may be ultimately to provide fibre for the mills. Certainly the people of Nebraska may look to this conclusion; and settlers in the State ought not to forget that flax may be made a profitable crop.

At a recent meeting of the Farmers'' Association, of Lancaster County, held at Lincoln, (the county seat and capital of the State,) a discussion took place on the probabilities of a flax crop for this year, and it was stated that some eastern gentlemen had offered to build an oil mill if the farmers would guarantee a sufficient quantity of the raw material. The correspondent who sends this item of information in the interests of farmers moving west, says that in Ohio, the flax crop used to be a most profitable one. Half a bushel of seed to the acre would produce from 10 to 20 bushels, worth $1.50 per bushel. Taking the yield at 10 bushels, the seed was worth $15.00 per acre; and allowing $8.00 per acre for expenses, (which included the delivery of the seed to the mill,) the net profit to the farmer was $7.00 per acre.—The straw also was worth $6.00 per ton; and the yield was half a ton to the acre.—Nebraska is more suitable for flax cultivation than Ohio; and farmers who migrate to this promising State, where the land is virgin, rich and cheap, may wisely keep this subject in view.

Hints on House Cleaning.

Paint should be cleaned by using only a little water at a time and changing often; a soft flannel cloth or sponge is better than cotton or a brush; a piece of pine wood with a sharp point should be used for the corners. Where the paint is stained with smoke, some ashes or potash-lie may be used. A soft linen towel should be used for wiping dry. Glass should not be washed with soap; a little paste of whiting and water should be rubbed over, and with another cloth it should be rinsed off, and the glass polished with a soft linen or old silk handkerchief. Alcohol or benzine, is a good thing to clean glass, and clean paper is probably better than any cloth, sponge or towel; dry paper leaves an excellent polish. Marble may be cleaned with a mixture of two parts of commen soda, one part of pumace-stone and one of chalk, finely powdered and tied up in a muslin rag; the marble is wetted with water, the powder shaken over it, and it is rubbed with a soft cloth until clean, then washed in clean water and dried with a soft linen or silk handkerchief. No soap or potash should be allowed on marble.—A good furniture polish is made by melting two ounces of beeswax, one ounce of turpentine and one drachm of powdered rosin together, with a gentle heat, and rubbing on when cold, with a soft flannel cloth, and polishing with a soft linen or silk cloth. If for mahogany, a little Indian-red may be mixed in. Cracks in furniture may be filled with putty, mixed with Indian-red or brown amber, to get the desired shade. When dry it will take an equal polish with the wood.—Christian Leader.

Perpetuity Post Paint.

Every farmer who has to fence his land knows too well how quickly posts planted in the earth become rotten, especially in a damp spot. All of them will welcome the following process to prevent rottenness—a process as wonderful in its effects as it is simple and almost costless. It is taken from Le Bièn Public of Dijon, France:

Take linseed oil, boil it, and mix it with charcoal dust until the mixture has the consistence of an ordinary paint. Give to the posts a single coat of the mixture or paint before planting them and no farmer, living the age of the patriarchs of old will live long enough to see the same posts rotten.

"Some years ago I discovered the way of rendering wood more durable in earth than iron itself," says the author of the communication, "but it seemed to me so simple and inexpensive that I did not think it worth while to make much ado and fuss about it. Posts of soft wood thus prepared were removed after remaining seven years in earth, and were found as sound as when they were planted. The only precaution to take is to use only well dried posts, before covering them with the charcoal paint.

The above recipe is certainly cheap, and seems to be well worth the trial. If what is said of the efficiency of that simple and cheap (about two cents per post) would save yearly millions of dollars to the farmers and telegraph companies. For it is said that the farmer, even in his teens, who will plant posts having received a coat of this "Perpetuity Post Paint," will never live long enough to see the same post decay.

To Prevent Balling.—Those who use horses know that the snow gathers in large balls and adheres to the feet of the animals. To prevent this, melt gutta percha, and pour it in the hoof, all around the inside of the shoe. The same material may be removed and used as often as required. The omnibus and car drivers of New York use the article altogether during the continuance of snow on the streets. "The merciful man is merciful to his beast," and he will thank us for this scrap of useful information.

Deep vs. Shallow Plowing.—J. W. Murray, of Carroll Co, Md., raised from one acre in 1872, 132½ bushels of corn. In 1873 he plowed the same piece "very deep," sowed 300 lbs. fine bone broadcast and 200 lbs. phosphate in the drill, and raised 152½ bushels on the acre, and wants the Maryland farmer to tell him who has done better.—Country Gentleman.

BEATTY & PLOTTS'

CELEBRATED

GOLDEN-TONGUE PARLOR ORGAN

IS ACKNOWLEDGED BY EMINENT MUSICIANS AND DISTINGUISHED MEN OF HONOR TO BE THE LEADING INSTRUMENT NOW IN USE —THEY SAY—

BEATTY & PLOTTS'

PARLOR ORGANS were awarded FIRST PREMIUM and DIPLOMA over Needham & Son's and J. Estey & Co's Organs at the Carbon County Fair, held at Lehighton, Pa., September, 1872.—Lehighton Weekly News, Oct. 5, 1872.

Committee.—Prof. Charles F. Horn, Prof. Wm. Moran, and H. D. Herdy, D. D., Hon. Z. Long, President.

St. Clair, Pa., Dec. 6, 1873.

Messrs. Beatty & Plotts—Gents: I have received the Organ sent by your firm to me, and had it examined. It gives ample satisfaction.

JOHN SINEY.

Mahanoy City, Pa., Oct. 16, 1873.

The Beatty & Plotts celebrated Golden Tongue Parlor Organ is by far the best Parlor Organ in use. I have carefully examined it, and find its tone, workmanship and durability to be the best I ever saw, and I can with pleasure recommend it to any in want of a first-class parlor organ. PROF. O. H. UNGER.

New Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 21, 1873.

Messrs. Beatty & Plotts—Gents: Having had one of your Golden Tongue Parlor Organs, for six months past, I thought before recommending it, to give it a fair, square trial, and am happy to testify that it surpassed all that has been said or advertised about it. I have had Professors of music, and celebrated organists come and try it, and one and all say that it is one of the sweetest and best toned instruments in the market. It has taken the shine out of all others around here. I am perfectly satisfied with it. You may publish this if you see fit, as my organ can be tried by any one wishing to do so, in proof of what I say.

A. S. R. RICHARDS,

Late of the Tamaqua Courier, now at New Bethlehem, Pa.

Beatty & Plotts Golden Tongue Parlor Organs are instruments that are winning for themselves a good reputation far and wide. The career of the firm is full of interest and shows what close application to one branch of business will do. Their energy, zeal and unyielding determination have enabled them to win.—Washington (N. J.) Star, March 27, 1874.

The Beatty & Plotts parlor organs are highly praised by good judges, for their sweetness of tone.—Pittston (Pa.) Comet Oct. 4, 1873.

Laury's Station, Pa., Jan. 27, 1874.

I have had Beatty & Plotts' Organ since August 14th, 1872; it gives the highest satisfation, and has proved all that it was recommended by the proprietors.

JOB HENRY.

The Beatty & Plotts' celebrated Golden Tongue Parlor Organs are pronounced unsurpassed by any now before the musical world, by all who have had the pleasure to examine them. Testimony from all parts of the country speaks in favor of them, going to show their superiority over all others.—Ashland, Pa., Bulletin, Dec. 5, 1873.

Laury's Station, Pa., Jan. 27, 1874.

Beatty & Plotts' Parlor Organ, of N. J., seem to give full satisfaction to all purposes all over; and I must say by the experience I have of one of these organs—which I have had in my possession for nearly two years, and is in excellent condition—I would advise all who wish to get a good and substantial parlor organ to see the above named party, before buying anywhere else.

DAVID SCHEIRER, Music Teache

Slatington, Pa., Feb. 6, 1874.

Beatty & Plotts' Parlor Organ I like better than the Standard, and gives better satisfaction, as I find by experience in my profession.

PROF. FRANK MAYER.

Tamaqua, Pa., Dec. 16, 1873.

Those desiring a beautiful ornament for their homes, as well as an instrument of unsurpassed musical excellence will find it in the Beatty & Plotts Golden Tongue Parlor Organ. It gives entire satisfaction, and, in fact, is the leading instrument of the day.

JULIA C. WHITENIGHT, Organist.

Messrs. Beatty & Plotts, of Washington, New Jersey, are happy. They live in an atmosphere of music. Music soft and sweet, music strong and warlike, the shrill notes of the warrior, or the lute-like tones of love are thrilling and ever sounding in their establishment, and their famous Golden Tongue Organs are a household necessity all over. —Tamaqua (Pa.) Courier, March 28, 1874.

Parlor Organ.—We call attention to the advertisement of Beatty & Plotts, manufacturers of Parlor Organs, in another part of this paper. These organs are fast superseding all others on account of their good qualities. A number of these instruments have been sold in this county, which give general satisfaction. These instruments are highly recommended by the best musicians in the country.—Sunbury American.

St. Clair, Pa., April 7, 1874.

To Daniel F. Beatty:—I have received my organ all right. It pleases me very much. I never played an organ that gives me better satisfaction, the case looks splendid. I have a friend waiting for one. Please send me another No. 60 at once for him. He advocates your organs above all others. Enclosed please find check.

Very respectfully.

JOHN MILLS.

AND THE

A FEW REASONS

WHY THE

ARION PIANO

IS SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS:

The ARION PIANO-FORTE has greater power than any other Piano-Forte manufactured.

It will Stand in Tune Longer, and in its mechanical construction it is more perfect, and, therefore, more durable, than any instrument constructed in the usual modern style.

The arrangement of the Agraffe, the manner of stringing, the peculiar form and arrangement of the Iron Frame

SUPERCEDES ALL OTHERS

The use of a bar (which is a part of the Iron Frame on a line with the heavy steel stringing,) gives where most needed, and in this respect all other pianoes fail.

The construction of the WREST PLANK, into which the tuning Pins are inserted, is such that it is impossible for the pins to come loosened, or the Wrest Plank itself to split, as is too often the case in other Piano-Fortes.

The Extraordinary Evenness

throughout the scale, the excellent Singing Quality, the

LENGTH AND PURITY OF VIBRATION,

all go to prove what we claim, viz: that the

ARION PIANO-FORTE

Is the Best Instrument Manufactured.

APPLETONS'

AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA.

NEW REVISED EDITION.

Entirely rewritten by the ablest writers on every subject. Printed from new type, and illustrated with Several Thousand Engravings and Maps.

The work originally published under the title of The New American Cyclopædia was completed in 1863, since which time the wide circulation which it has attained in all parts of the United States, and the signal developments which have taken place in every branch of science, literature and art, have induced the editors and publishers to submit it to an exact and thorough revision, and to issue a new edition entitled The American Cyclopædia.

Within the last ten years the progress of discovery in every department of knowledge has made a new work of reference an imperative want.

The movement of political affairs has kept pace with the discoveries of science, and their fruitful application to the industrial and useful arts and the convenience and refinement of social life. Great wars and consequent revolutions have occurred, involving national changes of peculiar moment. The civil war of our own country, which was at its height when the last volume of the old work appeared, has happily been ended, and a new course of commercial and industrial activity has been commenced.

Large accessions to our geographical knowledge have been made by the indefatigable explorers of Africa.

The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the natural result of the lapse of time, have brought into public view a multitude of new men, whose names are in every one's mouth, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars. Great battles have been fought and important sieges maintained, of which the details are as yet preserved only in the newspapers or in the transient publications of the day, but which ought now to take their place in permanent and authentic history.

In preparing the present edition for the press, it has accordingly been the aim of the editors to bring down the information to the latest possible dates, and to furnish an accurate account of the most recent discoveries in science, of every fresh production in literature, and of the newest inventions in the practical arts, as well as to give a succinct and original record of the progress of political and historical events.

The work has been begun after long and careful preliminary labor, and with the most ample resources for carrying it on to a successful termination.

None of the original stereotype plates have been used, but every page has been printed on new type, forming in fact a new Cyclopædia, with the same plan and compass as its predecessor, but with a far greater pecuniary expenditure, and with such improvements in its composition as have been suggested by longer experience and enlarged knowledge.

The illustrations which are introduced for the first time in the present edition have been added not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to give lucidity and force to the explanations in the text. They embrace all branches of science and of natural history, and depict the most famous and remarkable features of scenery, architecture and art, as well as the various processes of mechanics and manufactures. Although intended for instruction rather than embellishment, no pains have been spared to insure their artistic excellence; the cost of their execution is enormous, and it is believed they will find a welcome reception as an admirable feature of the Cyclopædia, and worthy of its high character.

This work is sold to Subscribers only, payable on delivery of each volume. It will be completed in sixteen large octavo volumes, each containing about 800 pages, fully illustrated with several thousand Wood Engravings, and with numerous colored Lithographic Maps.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABE.

FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Vinegar Bitters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Vinegar Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters act on all these cases in a similar manner. By purifying the Blood they remove the cause, and by resolving away the effects of the inflammation (the tubercular deposits) the affected parts receive health, and a permanent cure is affected.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use Vinegar Bitters as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in every form.
